Sir Robert Falconer,
Toronto University,
Toronto, Canada.

My dear Sir,

Certain perplexing human betterment and religious problems in Northern California seemed impossible of solution until we applied in a business-like way the methods of efficiency with which Mrs. Goethe and I became acquainted among the missionaries of various denominations in Korea.

Then success came and is continuing to come.

It is because we have been watching, with long distance telescopes, what we believe are very similar problems in Canada, and because we understand how vital to the future of the Dominion as well as to California the complete and final solution of those problems is that I am venturing to dare request an informal interview, believing that good will come to both Canada and California therefrom.

Our success is based upon an unified Protestantism for it is from the Protestant ranks that the largest number of our social workers is drawn.

When one sees a constantly melting drink majority in a great wine producing state like California- when one sees brothels locked at the rate of one every court day under a red-light abatement law only enacted because of an unified effort, one knows that consolidated energy pays.

According to present plans I should be in your city during July. Would it be possible for me to meet your goodself and a half dozen to a dozen leaders in your church work for an informal discussion ?

It would be helpful to us in California and might be to you in Canada in our struggle with problems which do not cease when one crosses the border.
